

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

What needs to be included? What don't I include?

Learning Outcome

Identify and describe jobs and careers in both work and social contexts appropriate for the interlocutor.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about jobs and career plans.
- I can discuss future plans.
- I can explain how to complete a master résumé.

Ask your partner:

- Do you know what a master résumé is? If yes, what is it? if no, what do you think it is?
- Do you have one? Why or why not?

Let's Explore!

Kristi meets up with Bianca. Bianca gives her some pointers. What are they?

* "Pointers" are useful pieces of advice or information that help you to do or understand something.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Kristi: Hey! What are you up to?

Bianca: I'm working on my business plan.

Kristi: How's that going?

Bianca: Good. By writing a business plan, I'm forcing myself to look at the business from every angle. This plan defines my business, sets goals, creates a plan to generate revenue, lists expenses, describes my customer base, and examines my competition.

Kristi: Sounds like a lot to do on your own.

Bianca: Well, I'm going to the bank later. I'm meeting with a financial advisor. One of the numbers I'll need to generate is the start-up cost. Anyway, what are you doing today?

Kristi: I'm going to spend the day identifying my skills and interests. I'll have to create a master résumé too.

Bianca: Great idea! Do you want some pointers?

Kristi: Sure.

Bianca: Start creating the largest section of your master résumé. You can do this by using your old résumés. This section can be separated into categories like work or volunteer experience. Then, start listing items within the categories from most recent to oldest. This will make developing a targeted résumé quick and easy.

Kristi: Okay. What about my skills?

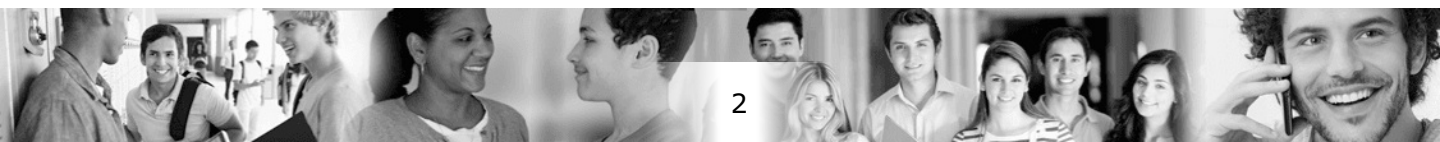

Bianca: The next step is defining your top 3 - 5 skills and strengths.

Kristi: Gotcha.

Bianca: After you've taken the time to create the content, spend some time formatting your master résumé. Having an organized master résumé ensures that you won't lose track of important information that could be included on one version of a résumé but omitted from others. It is also worthwhile to have someone do some editing and proofreading.

Kristi: Of course.

Bianca: Also, keeping your master résumé up to date is important. Plan to regularly update it, perhaps once every two months, to make sure you don't forget anything!

Let's Practice!

What are Kristi and Bianca doing?

Instructions: Read the dialogue. Circle all the sentences that discuss future plans. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Kristi: Hey! What are you up to?

Bianca: I'm working on my business plan.

Kristi: How's that going?

Bianca: Good. I'm forcing myself to look at the business from every angle.

Let's Practice!

What is Bianca working on*? What does she need to include?

To "work on" means to spend time working in order to produce or accomplish something.

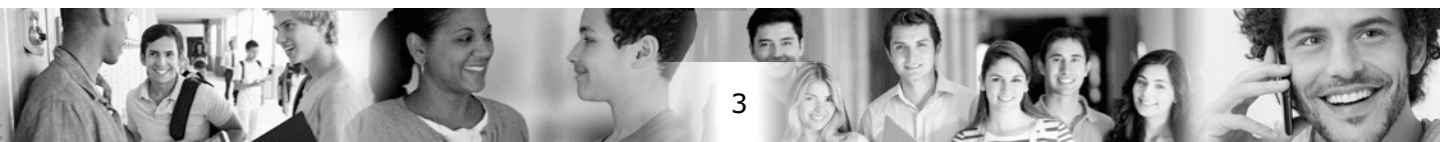

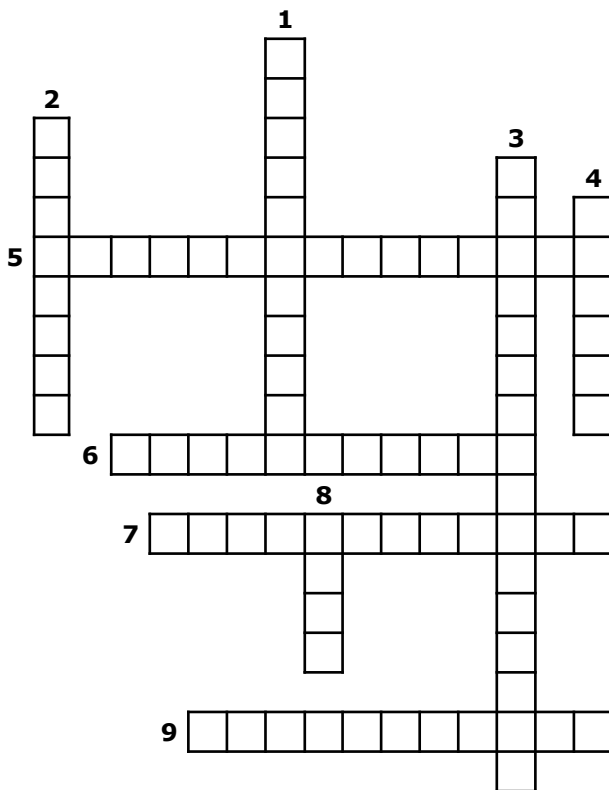

Instructions: Complete the crossword. First, read the clue. Then, write your answer.

Down

1. The people or groups that are competing against you, especially, in business
2. The things you have decided to achieve
3. A professional who provides financial services to clients
4. To describe something thoroughly, highlighting special features
8. To not include something because it isn't necessary

Across

5. To produce money over a period of time for selling goods or services
6. A document that explains a company's future plans and course of action
7. A group of clients who always purchase goods or services from a business
9. The initial expenses necessary to start a business

Extension Activity

Create a master résumé.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Look at the format a master résumé follows on the following page.
- Using that format and the information provided, create your own master résumé. If you have no work experience, make up a few examples.
- When you are finished, show it to a friend. Have your friend edit your master résumé.
- Proofread his/her master résumé.
- Discuss your master résumés and future plans.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I create a master résumé.

☐ ☐

I write about my work experience.

☐ ☐

I proofread a partner's master résumé.

☐ ☐

I talk about my future plans.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- business plan (noun): a document which explains what a company wants to do in the future, and how it plans to do it e.g. I'm working on my business plan.
- to define (verb): to describe as exactly as possible what something is e.g. This plan defines my business.
- set goals (expression): the things you decide that you want to achieve e.g. Do you have set goals in mind?
- generate revenue (expression): produce money over a period of time from selling goods or services e.g. It's important to create a plan to generate revenue.
- customer base (noun): people who buy something from a place again and again
e.g. Can you describe your customer base?
- financial advisor (noun): a professional who provides advice about managing money
e.g. I'm meeting with a financial advisor this afternoon.
- start-up cost (noun): the initial expenses necessary to start a business
e.g. I need to generate the start-up cost.
- to omit (verb): to not include something because it isn't necessary
e.g. Some information is included on one version of a résumé but omitted from another version.

Learning Points

What is a Gerund?

A gerund is a noun made from a verb by adding "-ing".

It is an action verb that is acting as a noun. The noun refers to an activity instead of a person or thing. Gerunds are written in their -ing form. You can use a gerund as the subject, the complement or the object of your sentence.

The gerund can function as the subject of a sentence, either on its own or as part of a phrase.

For example: Writing (a business plan) makes you look at your business from all angles.

It can also be the object of your sentence after certain verbs like "make".

For example: This makes creating a master résumé much easier.

Type	Examples
The gerund as the subject of the sentence	Having a master résumé is a great help. Listing items in categories will help you stay organized. Keeping your master résumé up to date is important.
The gerund as the complement of the sentence	The next step is choosing your top 3 skills.
The gerund as the object of the sentence	I liked doing PR. This makes developing a résumé easy. Start listing items here.

The Elements of a Master Résumé

A master résumé includes:

- personal information (name, address, phone number, e-mail address)
- your strengths and skills
- current/past volunteer experience
- education
- work experience

Your strengths and skills can be determined by looking at your volunteer and work experience.

Learning Points

List your current and past volunteer positions. Be mindful of which of these have helped you develop/showcase your strengths/skills.

List the formal education courses you have taken, in reverse-chronological order. This résumé section usually only contains secondary and formal postsecondary institutions you've attended. If you haven't completed a diploma or degree, list the expected completion date or be clear about how many years you have completed.

List all previous positions you've held.

Your Name • Street Address • City, State, Zip • Telephone number • E-mail

Strengths/Skills

- Strength/Skill #1
- Strength/Skill #2
- Strength/Skill #3
- Strength/Skill #4
- Strength/Skill #5

Volunteer Experience

Organization:

Dates:

Role/Responsibility:

Education

Institution:

Dates:

Course/Diploma/Degree:

Work Experience

Company:

Dates:

Role/Responsibility:

